
Pro Rege

Volume 18
Number 2 Arts Issue

Article 14

December 1989

Son of Quisling Speaks

Jan H. de Groot

Case J. Boot
Dordt College

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcollections.dordt.edu/pro_rege

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

de Groot, Jan H. and Boot, Case J. (1989) "Son of Quisling Speaks," Pro Rege: Vol. 18: No. 2, 22.

Available at: https://digitalcollections.dordt.edu/pro_rege/vol18/iss2/14

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the University Publications at Dordt Digital Collections. It has been accepted for inclusion in Pro Rege by an authorized administrator of Dordt Digital Collections. For more information, please contact ingrid.mulder@dordt.edu.

The son of Quisling speaks

Lord King, give me another name.
I am the traitor Quisling's son and my father's name is not gone but carried on with cruel fame,

forever, like Iscariot,
was cursed because of his foul deed and his betrayal, for kiss and greed, of Jesus Christ, the Son of God.

Iscariot had wife nor child and had hanged himself on a tree.
And Quisling, though at large and free,
with a mind perverse and beguiled.

His name shall as Judas's name be cursed and people will condemn both traitors and all will hate them.
Quisling — Iscariot: insane!

Save me, Lord! The world you'll reclaim and you will make all things anew.
To go with you, to die with you,
is to gain another pure name.

To pray with my own quiv'ring tongue to pray for him who did betray, for father Quisling, if I may,
'cause I am his son.

Jan H. de Groot
translated by Case J. Boot from Moder Koren