
Pro Rege

Volume 40
Number 2 Fine Arts Issue 2011

Article 8

December 2011

Sixth Street Symphony

Leah A. Zuidema
Dordt College, leah.zuidema@dordt.edu

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcollections.dordt.edu/pro_rege

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Zuidema, Leah A. (2011) "Sixth Street Symphony," Pro Rege: Vol. 40: No. 2, 11.

Available at: https://digitalcollections.dordt.edu/pro_rege/vol40/iss2/8

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the University Publications at Digital Collections @ Dordt. It has been accepted for inclusion in Pro Rege by an authorized administrator of Digital Collections @ Dordt. For more information, please contact ingrid.mulder@dordt.edu.

Sixth Street Symphony

Leah Zuidema

September twilight, half past eight,
open windows:

Down the block,
the slippery baritone slurs
of a fifth grader, hugging his euphonium—
the first in a long queue of awkward, sweaty embraces.

On the edge of town,
in a field of new foundations and frames,
a front-end loader pulses into reverse, an electronic metronome:
beat. beat. beat.
Gears grind.
Repeat. Repeat. Repeat.

In shadowy blue dew,
The rubber band buzz
of cicadas in our maple;
on the highway half mile south,
semi's rumble steadily westward,
hauling the wind behind them.

And here, in the piano room,
my youngest punches mercilessly
at white key sevenths, dissonant moonscapes fleeing her fingers.