
Pro Rege

Volume 32
Number 2 Fine Arts Issue 2003

Article 6

December 2003

Gravity

Mike Vanden Bosch
Dordt College

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcollections.dordt.edu/pro_rege

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Vanden Bosch, Mike (2003) "Gravity," Pro Rege: Vol. 32: No. 2, 12.

Available at: https://digitalcollections.dordt.edu/pro_rege/vol32/iss2/6

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the University Publications at Digital Collections @ Dordt. It has been accepted for inclusion in Pro Rege by an authorized administrator of Digital Collections @ Dordt. For more information, please contact ingrid.mulder@dordt.edu.

*Gravity

Mike Vanden Bosch

My father gave me a runt pig, as much to teach me the ought of love as to save a hopeless sack of bones, nosed by pig heads from a sow's life-giving milk. I put my boy's hands around its wrapped bones to stop its shivering, gently rubbed dry its damp pink skin. Morning and evening I gave it warmed milk from a worn-out baby bottle, named it Andy after an uncle long dead, and often cuddled it like a baby. In giving, I felt my heart stretch like a womb. My warm fingers stirred its pulse; my palms cradled its fear as if it were my own frailty come to roost. I gave to Andy what a child could give, and in giving, caught the heft of love. But pink flesh and blood seeped like sunlight through a crack in withered wood, me helpless to arrest its gravity.

* Previously published in Lyrical Iowa, 2003