Editorial

Change and continuity characterize this issue of Pro Rege: Russell Maatman and Rockne McCarthy continue the articles which they began in the March issue. Fred De Jong, Assistant Professor of Social Work, provides us with a challenge to face the issues involved with poverty.

This issue of Pro Rege completes the fourteenth year of publication. It is also the present editor's thirteenth year on the editorial board and his fourth as the editor. When Volume XV appears, Russell Maatman will be the editor inasmuch as the retiring editor has resigned from the faculty of Dordt College, having been associated with the institution for more than twenty-five years.

Professor Maatman has a long association with this journal, has written several articles for it, and has been in charge of the Book Reviews section. In addition, when the editor was on leave a year and a half ago, he showed his talents as acting editor, though without title. We are sure that he will do well in his new task and we commend him to the Lord for his blessing in guiding Pro Rege.
