
Pro Rege

Volume 49
Number 2 Fine Arts Issue 2020

Article 7

December 2020

Love in the Time of Coronavirus

David Schelhaas
Dordt University

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcollections.dordt.edu/pro_rege

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Schelhaas, David (2020) "Love in the Time of Coronavirus," Pro Rege: Vol. 49: No. 2, 7.
Available at: https://digitalcollections.dordt.edu/pro_rege/vol49/iss2/7

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the University Publications at Digital Collections @ Dordt. It has been accepted for inclusion in Pro Rege by an authorized administrator of Digital Collections @ Dordt. For more information, please contact ingrid.mulder@dordt.edu.

Love in the Time of Coronavirus

Dave Schelhaas

We wear masks to the grocery store.
In March we wiped down everything we bought with disinfectant, but now we don't.
We wear masks to church and keep them on when we sing. The preacher takes his off to preach. Sundays we eat backyard roast beef dinners with our kids and grandkids. We live on the lawn and on the deck. We name the birds as they jostle and bustle around the feeder: downy, goldfinch, house finch, sparrow, dove.
Butterflies sip nectar of aster, phlox and zinnia.
"A garden of earthly delights," says an old friend who stopped on his way from Michigan to Idaho. We sip beers and enlarge our past in maple-dappled shade. Every other day grandkids knock and ask for popsicles. They jabber and drip and dance around the deck. We ache for hugs. Before they leave they dive into our arms like they know what's good for them.