
Pro Rege

Volume 27
Number 2 Arts Issue 1998

Article 6

December 1998

At Dusk

David Schelhaas
Dordt College

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcollections.dordt.edu/pro_rege

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Schelhaas, David (1998) "At Dusk," Pro Rege: Vol. 27: No. 2, 8.

Available at: https://digitalcollections.dordt.edu/pro_rege/vol27/iss2/6

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the University Publications at Digital Collections @ Dordt. It has been accepted for inclusion in Pro Rege by an authorized administrator of Digital Collections @ Dordt. For more information, please contact ingrid.mulder@dordt.edu.

At Dusk

David Schelhaas

From the pink sky the last bit of sun that squints between houses and trees strikes my page as I sit in the old blue chair by the fireplace. Colorful cut-glass butterflies that earlier flitted upon the east wall have drooped into slumber.
A soft breeze, sweet with the smells of autumn, riffles the page of my book and coral petals from the roses cut by Jeri drift to the floor as silent as thoughts.

We will go out with friends at nine,
talk of politics and God,
but when we come home,
I will sit here again for a moment in the fragrant air and remember the butterflies, the light, the petals, slowly falling into the still dark night.