
Pro Rege

Volume 23
Number 2 Arts Issue

Article 15

December 1994

Paralysis

John Van Rys
Dordt College

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcollections.dordt.edu/pro_rege

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Van Rys, John (1994) "Paralysis," Pro Rege: Vol. 23: No. 2, 16.

Available at: https://digitalcollections.dordt.edu/pro_rege/vol23/iss2/15

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the University Publications at Dordt Digital Collections. It has been accepted for inclusion in Pro Rege by an authorized administrator of Dordt Digital Collections. For more information, please contact ingrid.mulder@dordt.edu.

Paralysis

by John Van Rys

Wanting is not willing nor yet doing. It's shores away from fullness and seventh day rest.

It is desire
with wings to fly at it clipped.
It's the apartment complex voyeur, concave lenses extending his lazy eyeballs.
See also the drone bee, charmed and placid,
at the sidelines of the pollen dance.
It is the womb empty, like the tomb
without any resurrection.
It is this body
when its only working muscle is the tv flicking thumb.
It's the book bought with thirty silver pieces, promised pages left for dead, unread.

Anybody out there
got a miracle cure? know a healer who can cast out this web-weaving demon?

I would kiss his feet
annoint them too
with vegetable oil providing I can raise my smelly, thread-bound carcass out of this chair.